Outpatient Therapist
and Owner,
Reintegrate Counseling

“After experiencing a moderate traumatic brain injury in 1999, the journey back from the incident started with the support of folks in rehabilitative services. Six years after the accident, I found myself saying: ‘I want to work with brain injury survivors to help them reintegrate into the workforce, community, faith, and academia.’ I’ve served as a vocational rehabilitation counselor, disability specialist at an ACC institution, and now work as a mental health therapist in an outpatient setting. I am a Certified Rehabilitation Counselor – first and foremost. That is the foundation! That is my WHY and my WHY not.”
